A research study for women who take antipsychotic medication
during pregnancy

The National Register of Antipsychotic Medication in Pregnancy (NRAMP)

- ☺ The National Register of Antipsychotic Medication in Pregnancy (NRAMP) is a national, ongoing, observational research study for women who take antipsychotic medication during pregnancy
- ☺ We aim to develop evidence-based guidelines for the safe use of these medications during pregnancy
- ☺ This research study has been approved by the Alfred Hospital Ethics Committee
- ☺ Involvement in this research study is voluntary

Would you like to take part in NRAMP?

We are looking for women of child-bearing age who:

- ☺ Take antipsychotic medication during pregnancy
- ☺ Are pregnant or have had a baby in the last 12 months
- ☺ Live in Australia
- ☺ Are able to provide informed consent

Women may join the study during pregnancy or at any time during the first 12 months after birthing

Interviews are conducted by telephone during pregnancy and for the first 12 months after birthing

For more information please complete this form, or call the Co-ordinator as below
